

A NIGHT-COORDINATION SYSTEM FOR NEW PARENTS

Every Night, Just Me.

A postpartum night-coordination system that replaces nightly arguing with a pre-agreed roster, a fairness ledger, and the exact words to make it stick.

A written, fair night-shift system both adults follow — so she gets a protected sleep opportunity, and nobody has to ask.

What This System Is — And Isn't

This is not a book about sleep deprivation. It is a working household operating agreement — the roster, the ledger, and the language, ready to fill in tonight.

LIFE AREA	Motherhood (early) · Marriage & partnership
LIFE STATE	New mother, 0–6 months postpartum, and her partner
SITUATION	She is running every night alone — feeding, settling, soothing — while her partner sleeps through, works away, or believes “helping” means one diaper change. There is no agreed system; every night is renegotiated by exhaustion and resentment.
THE PROBLEM	She cannot get a single protected sleep block, is approaching or past the point of physical and cognitive breakdown, and the marriage is absorbing the damage in silence.
CONSTRAINTS	Often still breastfeeding, so “sleep through the night” isn’t simply available. Cultural norms assign night-care to the mother by default. Asking directly can feel like an accusation. For some readers, there is no partner in the home at all.
THE TRANSFORMATION	A written, fair night-shift system both partners follow — protecting a 4–5 hour sleep opportunity for the mother whenever circumstances allow, without the nightly argument about whose turn it is.

Evidence & scope. Educational content informed by relationship research, postpartum health guidance, and lived experience. It is not a substitute for medical, clinical, or mental-health assessment. Cultural-norm observations are labeled as informed by lived experience, not prescriptive clinical fact. See Module 5 and Module 13 for full safety guardrails and escalation routing.

Thirteen Modules. One System.

Follow them in order the first time. After that, use the Contents to jump straight to whatever tonight requires.

01	The Argument That Ends the War Why unstructured “asking for help” fails	READ
02	The Situation Finder A three-question self-triage quiz	DECIDE
03	The Decision Tree Route yourself to the right roster	DECIDE
04	Roster Safety & Boundary Rules The non-negotiable guardrails	READ
05	The Three Shift Contracts Roster A, B and C — fillable templates	BUILD
06	The Sleep Banker The Recovery Bank fairness ledger	TRACK
07	The Seven Script Cards The exact words for the hard moments	PRINT
08	The Fridge Shift Chart Your one-page wall reference	PRINT
09	The 14-Day Shift Tracker Log the system’s real performance	PRINT
10	The Rescue Card Bad Night Protocol — for when it all breaks	PRINT
11	The Re-entry Protocol Restarting after a relapse, without guilt	READ
12	The Safety Gate When exhaustion needs more than a roster	READ
13	Authoring Standard How every tool in this book was designed	REFERENCE

The Ten-Step Night-Shift Roadmap

This is not a book to read cover to cover before you act. It is a sequence you move through — most of it inside your first evening.

- 1 Read — The Argument That Ends the War
Understand why unstructured “asking for help” fails, structurally, every time.
- 2 Find — The Situation Finder
Diagnose your household’s exact night profile in three questions.
- 3 Decide — The Decision Tree
Select the roster template engineered for your feeding style and partner availability.
- 4 Learn — Safety & Boundary Rules
Establish the non-negotiable guardrails for adult vigilance and baby care.
- 5 Build — The Roster Templates
Customize your Shift Contract — Roster A, B, or C.
- 6 Bank — Sleep Banker Mechanics
Activate the Recovery Bank ledger so shifts trade fairly.
- 7 Communicate — Script Cards
Use precise, battle-tested words to navigate objections.
- 8 Execute — The Fridge Shift Chart
Put the physical chart somewhere both adults see it every night.
- 9 Track — The 14-Day Shift Tracker
Log performance, friction and sleep outcomes daily.
- 10 Recover & Restart — Rescue Cards & Re-entry
Specialized protocols for illness, teething, or roster breakdown.

Four Pages You Should Print Tonight

Everything in this book can be used on screen. But four assets are built to leave the screen entirely — each sits alone on its own page for exactly that reason.

The Fridge Shift Chart

Module 8, page 1. One page. Print and place on the fridge or wall tonight.

The Seven Script Cards

Module 7, 4 pages. Print, cut along the dashed line, and keep in reach.

The 14-Day Shift Tracker

Module 9, 1 landscape page. Print two copies to cover the full 14 days, or reuse one weekly.

The Rescue Card

Module 10, page 1. Print and keep somewhere reachable at 3 a.m. — by the crib, or on the fridge beside the chart.

PRINTING NOTE

Every printable page in this book is framed with a dashed border and a gold PRINTABLE tag in the corner. Print at A4 or Letter size. Laminating the Fridge Chart and Rescue Card lets you reuse them week to week with a dry-erase marker.

The Argument That Ends the War

Why unstructured “asking for help” fails — structurally, every single time.

When you are waking up every 90 minutes to a crying baby while your partner sleeps peacefully in the next room, the issue feels deeply personal. It feels like a lack of love, a lack of awareness, or a lack of care.

The next morning, the conversation usually goes like this:

Mother: “I need you to help more at night. I am dying here.”

Partner: “Just tell me what to do, I’ll help. But you know I have work tomorrow.”

That night, the baby cries. The mother lies awake waiting for the partner to wake up. He doesn’t. She becomes furious, nudges him aggressively, or simply gets up herself, muttering in resentment.

Unstructured nightly negotiation fails 100% of the time.

It fails for three structural reasons:

1

The Burden of Asking

Asking your partner to “help” is cognitive labor. You wake, evaluate if the cry is urgent, decide to wake him, and instruct him. By then you are already fully awake and your sleep cycle is ruined.

2

The “Helper” Reframe

A partner positioned as a “helper” waits for instructions. He does not take ownership. If the baby is wet, he waits to be told. If the baby won’t settle, he hands the baby back.

3

Exhaustion Negotiation

At 3:00 a.m. both brains run at near-zero capacity. Arguing about “whose turn it is” under severe sleep deprivation is like negotiating a contract during a mild concussion.

THE SOLUTION — SHIFT-BASED ADULT COORDINATION

Stop negotiating at night. Externalize the schedule. A written contract removes the emotional labor of asking — nobody has to ask, the schedule asks. The partner stops being a “helper” and becomes a co-manager who owns a specific, non-optional shift block. This is not about blame. It is about a system that works even when you are too exhausted to be generous with each other.

The Situation Finder

Answer three questions honestly. Your answers route you to the exact roster and scripts built for your household.

1 What is your primary feeding method?

- (A) Exclusively breastfeeding — direct latch only, no bottles.
- (B) Breastfeeding but can pump expressed milk, or combo-feed with formula.
- (C) Exclusively formula or expressed milk.

2 What is your partner's availability at night?

- (A) Home but minimally involved — or sleeps through.
- (B) Works nights, travels, or lives elsewhere.
- (C) I am parenting solo — no partner in the home.

3 What is your primary source of household friction right now?

- (A) Partner says he "wants to help" but sleeps through the cries or doesn't know what to do.
- (B) We constantly argue at night about whose turn it is, or who is more tired.
- (C) Extended family says night duty is solely the woman's job and criticizes my partner's involvement.
- (D) I am too exhausted to coordinate anything — we are in absolute survival mode.

Q1	Q2	Q3	YOUR ROUTE
A — breastfeeding only	A — partner home	A, B, or C	Roster A + Scripts 1, 2, 3
B or C — bottle-capable	A — partner home	A, B, or C	Roster B + Scripts 5, 6
Any	B or C — no partner / solo	Any	Roster C + Script 7
Any	Any	D — survival mode	Rescue Card first return here tomorrow

The Decision Tree

Confirm your route from the Situation Finder by following the tree below, top to bottom.

A

Routed to Roster A

You are breastfeeding and your partner is home. He manages all non-feeding duties during his shift — diapering, soothing, resettling — and brings the baby to you only for feeds. Start: Module 5 · Roster A. Use Script Cards 1, 2, 3.

B

Routed to Roster B

You can use bottles — formula or expressed milk. This allows a true alternating shift: one parent fully off, one fully on. Start: Module 5 · Roster B. Use Script Cards 5 and 6.

C

Routed to Roster C

You are parenting without a partner at night. This roster builds a scheduled support web from your available village. Start: Module 5 · Roster C. Use Script Card 7.

!

Survival Mode (Q3 = D)

Do not start the roster tonight. Go directly to Module 10 — The Rescue Card. Get through tonight. Return to this tree tomorrow, once you have had any rest at all.

Roster Safety & Boundary Rules

Before signing any roster, both adults read and agree to the following. These are not optional — they are the boundary within which the entire system operates.

RULE 1 · INFANT SAFETY IS PARAMOUNT, ALWAYS

Safe-sleep standards. This contract controls adult coordination only. It does NOT override safe-sleep practice. Baby always sleeps on their back, on a firm flat separate surface, free of blankets, pillows, bumpers, or soft toys — per WHO and pediatric guidance. Ask your pediatrician or midwife if you are unsure.

Vigilance requirement. The active Shift Manager remains fully awake and alert while handling the baby. Never hold the baby in a bed, sofa, or armchair if there is any risk of falling asleep.

No earplugs for the active manager. The on-shift parent must not wear earplugs, headphones, or use sleep-inducing aids. The off-duty parent may use earplugs or white noise — that is the point of the system.

RULE 2 · BABY CONCERNS ALWAYS OVERRIDE THE ROSTER

If the baby cannot be settled, or the active caregiver is concerned about feeding, illness, injury, breathing, or any unusual behavior — the active caregiver assesses the baby and follows pediatric or clinical guidance, or seeks appropriate help. Use the agreed phrase "I need a handoff" to coordinate support. The roster pauses. Baby comes first.

RULE 3 · THIS IS A COORDINATION TOOL, NOT MEDICAL ADVICE

This guide provides household scheduling models and relationship communication tools. It does not contain clinical diagnoses, pediatric medical advice, or safe-sleep certifications. For feeding schedules, safe-sleep arrangements, or any physical concern about the baby, consult your pediatrician, midwife, or certified lactation consultant.

Initial — Mother

Initial — Partner / Helper

Date

Roster A — Breastfeeding Split Shift

For couples where the baby is exclusively breastfed. Partner manages all non-feeding duties, protecting the mother's sleep opportunity.

Postpartum Shift Agreement

Goal: protect 4+ hrs of uninterrupted sleep opportunity for Mother, safely.

MOTHER'S SHIFT · 2AM-7AM

7:00 AM

- Mother — active manager

- All feeding, diapering, soothing duties
- Partner is fully off-duty and sleeps uninterrupted

During the partner's shift the mother is officially off-duty — separate room or earplugs/white noise. She does not get up unless called upon. Escalation: any safety concern overrides the roster; coordinate with "I need a handoff."

Partner — my hours: _____ PM to _____ AM

Roster B — Alternating Bottle-Fed Shift

For couples using formula or expressed breastmilk. A true alternating shift — both parents receive a full sleep opportunity window.

B

Postpartum Shift Agreement

Goal: split duties equally, 5+ hrs of sleep opportunity for both parents.

■ Partner — active manager

- Bottle-feed (formula / expressed milk)
- Burp, diaper change, soothe, resettle
- Mother off-duty, separate sleep zone

■ Mother — active manager

- Breastfeed or bottle-feed, burp, diaper
- Soothe, resettle
- Partner off-duty, sleeps uninterrupted

HANDOFF & PREP RULES

A physical alarm marks the transition — silent and swift, oncoming manager takes over immediately. Before the first shift, all bottles / formula / expressed milk are pre-measured at the feeding station. No night-time hunting for supplies.

Mother — my hours: ____ AM to ____ AM

Partner — my hours: ____ PM to ____ AM

Roster C — Support-Web Roster

For solo mothers, mothers whose partners are frequently away, or those using a helper — a family member, night nanny, or trusted friend.

C

Postpartum Shift Agreement
Goal: protect the mother's recovery via a scheduled village, 4+ hrs.

HELPER'S SHIFT · 11PM-4AM

MOTHER SLEEPS

11:00 PMActive support nights: [Mon · Wed · Fri]4:00 AM

■

Helper — active manager

- Diaper, soothe, bottle-feed
- If direct breastfeeding required: brings baby to mother for feeding only, then takes baby back

■

Mother's role

- Sleep — that is the whole job
- On nights with no helper: Survival Protocol (right)

👶

SURVIVAL PROTOCOL — NIGHTS WITH NO HELPER SCHEDULED

Sleep when the baby sleeps, no exceptions. Defer all non-essential household tasks. Use pre-cooked or frozen meals. Restrict daytime visits to protect rest.

MotherHelper / Family MemberDate

EVERY NIGHT, JUST ME

Module 05 · Roster C

The Sleep Banker Recovery Bank

A fairness accounting system that translates invisible night exhaustion into visible, tradable credits — so exhaustion debt never silently compounds into resentment.

CREDIT TYPE	WHAT IT IS
1 Night Shift Credit (NSC)	Covering a night block of 3–5 hrs outside your scheduled roster, allowing the other parent to sleep. Earned automatically by the covering parent.
1 Recovery Payback (RP)	A morning sleep-in (until 11 AM) or a 3-hour weekend afternoon nap, where the other parent takes 100% responsibility for baby and household.

THE LEDGER RULE & THE EXPIRATION RULE

All credits and debits are written on the Fridge Chart or the ledger below — verbal promises do not count. Every NSC must be redeemed within seven (7) days or it expires automatically. This is not a punishment; it prevents historical tally-keeping (“you owe me from three weeks ago”) and forces timely rest over compounding resentment.

The Recovery Bank Ledger — print and attach to the Fridge Chart

DATE EARNED	PARENT (+1 NSC)	NSC ACTIVITY	DATE REDEEMED	NET BALANCE
Example	Partner	Wed night extra block	Sat morning sleep-in	0

Three scenarios

- 01 Partner covers an extra block. Baby is sick Wednesday; partner covers mother’s 2–7 AM shift. Partner earns +1 NSC, logged Wednesday, redeemed as a Saturday sleep-in by Sunday.
- 02 Emergency override. Any night the emergency handoff is activated and the off-duty parent takes over automatically earns the covering parent +1 NSC — no discussion needed.
- 03 Expired credit. An NSC earned Monday, unredeemed by the following Monday, simply expires. Not a punishment — a system boundary. The goal is rest now, not debt-tracking later.

1

SCRIPT CARD

Initiating the Shift Conversation

WHEN TO USE • During the day — never at night — when the baby is calm.

“I love how hard we are both working to take care of the baby. But my current exhaustion isn’t sustainable — I am hitting a wall. I want us to look at this night-shift contract together. It’s not about fault, it’s about a roster so we both get a guaranteed sleep block. Can we look at it for 5 minutes after lunch?”

CUT ALONG DASHED LINE

2

SCRIPT CARD

Defusing “I Have Work Tomorrow”

WHEN TO USE • When your partner objects that he needs sleep for his job.

“I hear you, and your job is crucial. But caring for a newborn all day is also a full-time, high-stakes job. If I collapse or my health fails, our household goes down. We both need a minimum safety block to do our jobs safely. Let’s look at the template that protects your sleep for the second half of the night.”

3

SCRIPT CARD

Handling “You Do It Better”

WHEN TO USE • When he claims the baby only calms for you, to avoid night duty.

“The baby only prefers me because I’ve had more practice. You are just as capable of learning. If I step in every time, you will never get that practice, and I will never get sleep. I’m putting on my white noise machine. I trust you to find your rhythm. I’m going to sleep now.”

CUT ALONG DASHED LINE

4

SCRIPT CARD

The Emergency Handoff

WHEN TO USE • When the active manager has reached their limit and safety is at risk.

“I have reached my limit. I am holding the baby safely but I am too exhausted to continue safely. I need to activate the emergency handoff. I’m putting the baby safely in the crib now and I need you to take over. I’ll be back in 30 minutes.”

5

SCRIPT CARD

The 5-Minute Sunday Roster Review

WHEN TO USE • Every Sunday afternoon, to adjust the coming week's roster.

“Let’s do our 5-minute night review. How did last week’s shifts feel? Did you get your sleep blocks? Baby is waking at different times now — do we need to adjust our transition time? Let’s write the updated hours on the chart.”

CUT ALONG DASHED LINE

6

SCRIPT CARD

The No-Blame Reset

WHEN TO USE • The morning after a night the roster collapsed or someone slept through.

“Last night was rough and we both lost our tempers. Let’s not blame each other — exhaustion does that. The roster didn’t work because [specific reason]. Let’s adjust: tonight we will [specific fix]. We reset today with a clean slate.”

7

SCRIPT CARD

Defusing Extended Family Critique

WHEN TO USE • When relatives say night duty “isn’t a man’s job.”

“Thank you for your care and concern. This is how we protect our marriage and our baby’s safety. Sharing night shifts helps him bond with the baby from the beginning, and lets me heal physically. This system works for our household, and we are committed to it.”

These are precision tools, not suggestions. Do not improvise at 3 a.m. Use the script.

Every Night, Just Me

NIGHT-SHIFT CHART · swiippt.com/v06

WEEK OF

ROSTER TYPE (CIRCLE ONE)

A

B

C

Shift 1 — Evening Block

_____ PM to _____ AM

Active Shift Manager: _____

Duties: Diaper check · Soothe · Bottle feed (if applicable)

 Off-duty parent is in Do Not Disturb sleep zone · may use earplugs / white noise. Active manager stays fully alert — no sleep aids.

● TRANSITION — SILENT HANDOFF · _____ AM · METHOD: ALARM / TAP

Shift 2 — Morning Block

_____ AM to _____ AM

Active Shift Manager: _____

Duties: Breastfeed / Bottle feed · Diaper check · Soothe

 Off-duty parent is in Do Not Disturb sleep zone.

EMERGENCY HANDOFF RULE

If baby cannot be settled, or you are concerned about feeding, illness, or safety — assess baby and follow pediatric guidance or seek help. To coordinate partner support, say: “I need a handoff.”

Recovery Bank Ledger

DATE	PARENT (+1 NSC)	NSC ACTIVITY	DATE REDEEMED

Credits expire in 7 days. Redeem as a morning sleep-in (to 11 AM) or a 3-hour afternoon nap. Write it — don't just promise.

The 14-Day Shift Tracker

Started: _____

DAY	DATE	ROSTER	SHIFT 1 MANAGER	SHIFT 2 MANAGER	MOTHER'S SLEEP (HRS)	NSC EARNED	HANDOFF USED?	FRICTION / NOTES
1
2
3
4
5
6
7
DAY 7 CHECK-IN — Run the 5-Minute Sunday Review (Script Card 5). Adjust shift times below if needed. New times: _____
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
DAY 14 REVIEW — Total NSC earned: _____ · Total NSC redeemed: _____ · Average nightly sleep (mother): _____ hrs · Keep this roster? ☐ Yes ☐ Adjust ☐ Switch template

Bad Night Protocol

THE RESCUE CARD · EVERY NIGHT, JUST ME

1

Put baby down safely

Place baby on their back, in the crib or bassinet, on a firm flat surface — even mid-cry. A crying baby in a safe crib is safer than an exhausted adult holding them.

2

Step back & reset, 60 seconds

Leave the room if needed. Breathe. You are not failing — you are protecting your baby by stepping back before you reach zero capacity.

3

Call for the handoff

Wake your partner or helper. Use the exact phrase below. This is not weakness — it is the system working exactly as designed.

“I need a handoff. Now.”

988

USA · CRISIS LINE

111

UK · NHS

112

NIGERIA · EMERGENCY

Cut out and keep near the crib or on the fridge

The Re-entry Protocol

The roster will break sometimes — illness, travel, a terrible week, a fight. This is how you restart without turning the relapse into a new argument.

1

Name it without blame

Say out loud: “The roster broke down this week.” Not “you broke the roster.” Exhaustion, illness, and travel break systems — people don’t need to be at fault for that to be true.

2

Run the No-Blame Reset

Use Script Card 6 verbatim, the same day if possible. Identify the one specific reason it broke — not a character flaw, a logistics gap.

- Was the transition time unrealistic?
- Did a feeding or teething change shift baby’s wake pattern?
- Did one parent take on a shift while sick or overloaded at work?

3

Adjust one variable, not the whole system

Don’t discard the roster and go back to unstructured nights. Change the smallest thing that caused the break — shift time, duty split, or feeding method — and re-commit for 48 hours before judging again.

4

Re-sign, don’t re-litigate

Update the Fridge Chart with the new times. Both adults initial the change. Do not reopen the entire original argument from Module 1 — the system already answered that question.

A RELAPSE IS NOT A FAILURE

Every couple running this system has a bad week. What makes the system work long-term isn’t a perfect streak — it’s a fast, low-drama return to the roster. Restarting on day 2 instead of day 12 is the entire skill.

The Safety Gate

This system coordinates a household. It cannot treat a medical or mental-health emergency. Read this checklist honestly — for yourself, or for your partner.

- ☐ Thoughts of harming yourself or your baby, even fleeting or “intrusive”
- ☐ Persistent feelings of hopelessness, worthlessness, or rage lasting more than two weeks
- ☐ Inability to sleep even when the baby is asleep and a shift-partner is covering
- ☐ Panic attacks, racing thoughts, or a sense of unreality
- ☐ Physical symptoms that concern you — chest pain, fainting, uncontrolled bleeding, fever

IF YOU CHECKED EVEN ONE BOX

Stop optimizing the roster. This is a clinical situation, not a scheduling one. Contact your doctor, midwife, or a crisis line today — the same day, not “when things calm down.” Postpartum depression, anxiety, and psychosis are medical, treatable conditions — they are not a personal failing, and they are not something a shift chart can fix alone.

Crisis & support directory

United States

988 SUICIDE & CRISIS LIFELINE

988

POSTPARTUM SUPPORT INT'L

1-800-944-4773

United Kingdom

NHS NON-EMERGENCY

111

SAMARITANS

116 123

Nigeria

NATIONAL EMERGENCY NUMBER

112

MENTALLY AWARE NIGERIA

0809-111-6264

FOR PARTNERS

If she checked a box but is reluctant to call, you can make the call together, or offer to sit with her while she does. Reluctance to seek help is common and is not a sign it isn't needed — it is often a sign it is needed most.

The Authoring Standard

Every recurring asset in this book follows one of seven visual patterns, chosen deliberately rather than left to default paragraph formatting. This page documents the mapping.

ASSET TYPE	VISUAL PATTERN	USED IN	WHY THIS PATTERN
Callout	Colored surface tint + left-weighted icon chip + uppercase label + body text. Color carries meaning: red = safety, amber = warning, blue = informational, green = resolution, blush = human/emotional.	Inline, wherever a rule or warning appears	Reader must recognize severity at a glance, without reading the paragraph first.
Checklist	Square checkbox glyph + left-aligned statement, generous line height, no numbering.	Situation Finder options, Safety Gate self-assessment	Checkboxes read as self-assessment tools, not sequential steps — order doesn't matter, completion does.
Tracker	Ruled table, alternating row shading, bordered cells sized for handwriting, banded review rows in a distinct tint.	14-Day Shift Tracker, Recovery Bank Ledger	A tracker must look writable — empty cells with visible boundaries invite a pen; paragraphs of text don't.
Decision tree	Boxed nodes connected by ruled lines in a true branching layout, root-to-leaf, leaf nodes color-filled to mark endpoints.	Module 03, roster routing	A decision is spatial. Rendering it as prose forces the reader to hold the whole tree in their head; a diagram holds it for them.
Rescue card	A bordered, drop-shadowed card object with its own header band, sized and centered like a physical index card, printed alone with cut guides.	Module 10, Bad Night Protocol	This asset is meant to leave the book. It has to look like an object you'd actually pin to a wall, not a page you tore out.
Script cards	Individual bordered cards, one per script, with a numbered badge, a category tag, a "when to use" label, and the script itself set in serif italic like a quoted line.	Module 07, seven cards across four pages	Two cards per page with a cut line lets a reader build a physical deck — the italic serif signals "these are words to say," not instructions to read.
Schedule grid	A horizontal proportional timeline bar segmented by shift, colored per owner, with a labeled handoff segment and duty columns beneath.	Fridge Chart, Roster A/B/C templates	Time-of-night handoffs are inherently visual; a bar the reader can glance at beats a sentence like 'the partner works 9pm to 2am.'

PRINT BEHAVIOR

Rescue Card, Script Cards, Fridge Chart, and the 14-Day Tracker are the only assets framed with a dashed border and gold PRINTABLE tag — a signal that the page is designed to be removed from the book and used as a standalone object, not just referenced on-screen.

 YOU HAVE EVERYTHING YOU NEED

The roster is written. The words are ready. Tonight doesn't have to be just you.

Print the four printable pages, sign the roster you chose, and put the chart where you'll both see it tonight. Come back to the Contents page whenever the shape of a night changes.

NEXT IN YOUR JOURNEY

V09

Return-to-Body

A gentle postpartum movement & recovery tracker for the weeks after sleep starts to stabilize.

V11

The Fourth Trimester Budget

A household cash-flow system for the first six months of new expenses.

V19

Re-entry to Work

A phased plan for returning to a career without losing the shift system you just built.